CANTOR'S MESSAGE

In January, I had the privilege of meeting up with my Cantorial colleagues at the Cantor's Assembly Midwinter Conference in Palm Springs. During the day spent with my fellow Cantors, I was lifted by the presence of about 60 voices blending into a perfect harmony as one could only imagine!

A gifted musician and our noted speaker that afternoon was Noah

Aronson (www.noaharonson.com) who is the son of a Cantor. Noah is also an Artist – in – Residence where he is welcomed by all congregations who seek him out. He spoke to our group and shared with us the relationship between creativity and spirituality.

He asked us, "Where did we come from? Who made you? Why are we here?"

Ram Das (1931-2019), the American spiritual leader and yoga guru, stated, "We are here to help each other home." We are all on a journey which begins with innocence and purity.

Cantor Bruce Shapiro

The French philosopher Pierre Teilhard de Chardin (1881-1955) said that "we are not human beings having a spiritual experience. We are spiritual beings having a human experience."

We are here to help each other on that journey! Our job is to let ourselves be a vessel. To learn, to grow, to receive, to feel and express our emotions especially when we feel blocked is essential in order for us to hear the "music of life itself". We must move past the structure of our music, but flow with the feeling that the music brings to us.

Jews do not take life at face value. We are programmed to question. We struggle (Yisrael), we question, and indeed we must become children again to feel inspired, to have energy to learn and grow, and to aspire!

During this month we get to celebrate as a community, the World – Wide – Wrap, on Sunday, February 5. We begin with breakfast together followed by our community wrap!

Our next Torah study on Shabbat Shekalim (about 45 minutes) will be on Saturday morning, February 18 at 9 AM. Adding one more item to your Jewish “To Do” list for 5783? This is an easy one and the discussions are lively regardless of the level of your current Torah understanding. It is amazing how we add our own “spark” to every conversation held and each question asked! (Join on Zoom or in person.)

Remember TEAM...Together Each Achieves More! Lastly, “alone we can do so little, together we can do so much!”

Adon Olam, Master of the Universe, may we be inspired by our fellow mankind to learn and grow. “If we are a creature, we are created. If we were created, we have a Creator.” The Creator needs you. Remember that we are helping the Creator and that what we do in this world fills us with a sense of purpose, no matter what stage of life we have attained.

As it states in Pirkei Avot (Ethics of our Fathers), “You are not obligated to complete the task, but neither are you free to desist from it. (PK2:21)

May you give and receive love through your heart and arms (imagine, our arms are “love handles”)!

Questions to ponder?

1. In Exodus, Chapter 23 (page 471 in the Etz Chaim), what are the 3 kinds of speech?
2. Provide an example of one of the three (3).
3. The first three students who email me the answer to question number 1, will be provided a $ 10 Target Card. This includes the confirmation class. 3mshapiro@cox.net

Polish Mezuzah Hunters

gathering traces of a bygone Jewish world

The abandoned house on 14 Prona Street in Warsaw is a pilgrimage site for tourists. The building is dilapidated, and entry is dangerous: The facade is crumbling, bricks are missing, and the interior has been looted and destroyed. And yet, it still has great charm. Given that it hasn't been renovated in the 77 years since the end of World War II, it remains an authentic remnant of a bygone Jewish world that no longer exists in Poland.

Helena Czernek, 37, and Aleksander Prugar, 38, formerly a couple and now colleagues, recently stepped through the building's gates as part of a unique project they have been engaged in for the past several years. On one of the doorposts, they found the last evidence of the building's original tenants: The traces of the mezuzah that was once affixed there - peeling and covered with patina.

Without hesitation, the two open the satchel containing the appropriate work equipment: A paste containing a special substance that molds to the surface on which it's spread. They copy the imprints of the original mezuzah, which had been removed. Later, in their workshop, they use the imprint to produce a new bronze mezuzah. "It's not a replica because we don't have the original. It's

On their website, which is called Mi Polin (Hebrew for "From Poland"), they explain:

"We cast old Mezuzah traces out of bronze to create new mezuzahs and build a link to your past."

Pieces of a historical puzzle

Each mezuzah is a story in itself, a piece of the puzzle that composes the history of Polish Jewry. The house on 14 Pr6na, for example, was built around the turn of the 20th century. It was a luxurious four-story townhouse that included apartments, stores, and workshops. Among the stores were the Meerson and Epstein department store, Maurice Graff's hardware store, a shop selling wooden planks for picture frames, a shoemaker, and more. On the ground floor, there was a synagogue, which remained until 1940. In its heyday, the building was lavishly decorated, as evidenced by the railings, balconies, and stairs.

Casting a mezuzah: "They're not replicas because we don't have the originals."

The owner of this house was Jewish industrialist Meir Wolanowski. He owned a factory in Warsaw that produced components for railways and for the telegraph and telephone networks.

During World War II, the building was inside the ghetto. Jews hid inside a double wall in the corridors. During the Polish Warsaw Uprising in 1944, it served as headquarters for the Poles who rebelled against the German occupier. The building served as the point of departure for one of the most famous operations in the uprising - an attack against the telephone center of the German General Government.

After World War II, the building was nationalized by the government. Eventually, the building was deemed unsafe for habitation, the last tenants were evacuated. Now, there is a plan to renovate it and turn it into

Over the years, the building housed a school for commerce, a branch of the Hashomer Hatzair Zionist youth movement, sewing shops, a pastry shop, and a house painter. When they visited there in late 2014, the couple was surprised to discover a metal plaque on the front door that had survived the ravages of time. Inside the plaque, they found the original parchment of the mezuzah that once marked the doorframe. "We got permission from the owners, took the parchment, and it was examined by the man in charge of preservation at the National Museum in Warsaw. It's now on display in our office in Warsaw," recalls Czernek.

In the city of Szczepieszyn they visited a building built by a Jewish tailor from the Zylberman family in the 1920s. The family lived in the new home of the Warsaw Jewish Theater.

To date, Czernek and Prugar have documented 153 mezuzahs in 92 Polish cities, including Warsaw, Krakow, Lublin, Lodz, Pinsk, and Slonim. They have also cast mezuzahs in Ukraine, Belarus, Romania, and even Morocco - which Czernek visited on a vacation four years ago and found a mezuzah in the home of the rabbi of Marrakesh.

Most of their customers are Jews of Polish origin from all over the world who "miss the homeland," according to Prugar. "They want a piece of their home or of their forgotten story. We strengthen their identity and bring them closer to Poland."

Their journey also led them to a house on 17 Wladycze Street in Przemysl. The earliest evidence of the house traces back to 1852. At the end of the 19th century, the wooden house was rebuilt in brick. Later, according to municipality records, it was owned by two Jewish residents. The two, registered as the building's last owners, were members of the Kreshover and Laskar families.

the city since the mid-19th century. One of the family's descendants, Tobiasz Zylberman, who was also a tailor, survived six German camps during the Holocaust and ultimately escaped from one of the trains. After the war, he emigrated to the United States, where he continued to work as a tailor until his death in 1996 at the age of 92. His family contacted Czernek and Prugar and specially ordered the model of the mezuzah that was affixed to the entrance of the house in Szczebrzeszyn. Now, that mezuzah marks a door several thousand miles away in Chicago.

One of the most recent mezuzahs documented and recreated by the team comes from Lviv, Ukraine, a city with a glorious Jewish past, which has been in the headlines in recent weeks in the tragic context of the war. In a neglected building, which looks as though it was frozen in time, the pair found a piece of metal from the original mezuzah. But there was no parchment inside. "This city is one of the most beautiful we have visited and is also very important to us," says Czernek. Prugar's ancestors lived there before World War II, and Czernek's grandfather lived in the Lviv ghetto during the war.

In the city of Brody, also in the

Lviv district, they found an entire mezuzah case in one of the houses, but without a parchment. "This is one of the only cases where it was possible for us to create a mezuzah that looks exactly like the original," they wrote excitedly in a post on their Facebook page. The page also chronicles their visit to the vestiges of the city's synagogue and adjacent Jewish cemetery.

They also visited the Ukrainian city of Belz, which is noted as the founding site of the Belz Hasidic sect. "The only trace of a mezuzah in this city was found in a small and unique house in the city square," says Czernek. The house's walls are marked by bullet holes left from the executions or battles that took place there during World War II.

In 2013, Helena Czernek and Aleksander Prugar started "Mi Polin," their company that creates and sells Judaica. "We were looking for a way of dealing with this emptiness; we wanted to talk about it and create it," says Czernek, referring to Poland's glorious Jewish past. Creating new mezuzahs according to a model of original mezuzahs was one way for them to do this. "Synagogues are traces of communities; a mezuzah is a trace of those who were murdered," says Prugar.

The two conduct historical research on every mezuzah, documenting the history of the house where it was affixed. "We collect testimony about the history of ordinary people, not necessarily the famous,"

those places. "We actually go from house to house, door to door, looking for mezuzahs. Sometimes we don't find anything, and that's the worst: A city that once had a Jewish majority, and suddenly there isn't even a single trace of a mezuzah, says Czernek. The new mezuzahs that she casts from the same apertures where the original mezuzahs were located document a point in time when the Jews were taken from their homes to the extermination camps. Without these mezuzahs, we'd never know that Jews lived in those houses.

stresses Czernek. Prugar adds: "We stand between past and future, between the two time zones."

The original plan was to create a symbolic number of seven mezuzahs and display them in an exhibition. "But then we started receiving requests from Jews throughout the world whose families had lived in Poland, and who asked us to prepare mezuzahs for them like those that were in their homes or their cities,,," says Czernek.

The mezuzah hunt includes intensive fieldwork. The two look for information about neighborhoods and streets where Jews lived and visit

Confirmation Students Chanukah 2022 experiment

This year's confirmation students are very concerned about environmental issues affecting our health and what are Jews doing to combat climate change in our homes and the world. They were concerned about the air quality in our homes by burning candles in the Chanukiah. The question: Which is more environmental sound for our health and the environment -- candles or olive oil? Upon researching the compounds, processing, and manufacturing used to create candles and olive oil, they discovered that olive oil is the best for lighting our Chanukiot. The only candles equal to the burning of clean olive oil are those made of beeswax. So, they set out to design the best environmentally safe and healthy Chanukiah. These Chanukiot burn olive oil and a beeswax Shamash. Students also discovered that you can regulate the amount of oil used by adding water to the container-- more water, the less oil used means you can make a little bit of oil go a long way. That discovery lead them to ask: Do you think that people knew about that when they didn't have enough oil to light the Menorah in the Temple? I replied, "What do you think happened? Just don't ruin the story." Out of the mouths of questioning teenagers.

It would be so awesome if he had birthday cards from all around the United States to open when he gets home. If you have the time to do this, you would be making a difference in a young boy's life!

EDUCATION Report

Marci Rouman, Education Director

At CBS Religious School, we started discussing Tu B'Shvat and our spring celebrations. Tu B'Shvat is now celebrated as an environmental holiday. It is a day to remind us to care for the natural world. Many Jews take part in tree planting or arrange to have a tree planted in Israel.

Here at CBS, we do a Tu B'Shvat Seder based on the seasons. It does involve ice cream and some other good treats!

Coming attractions include Mishloach Manot and our world-famous Purim play. Stay tuned!

RITUAL Report

Trees Planted In The Holy Land

Over 100 years ago, Jewish National Fund-USA began to replenish the native vegetation of the Holy Land that had disappeared or been destroyed. The Bible tells us that God originally filled the land with olive, pine, cypress, tamarisk, acacia, and carob trees. These are the species that we plant today to renew and nurture the land.

Send a beautiful personalized tree certificate to your family, friends, or loved ones, to show your expression of sympathy or in recognition of a special occasion.

Planting trees in Israel is a beautiful way to show you care. Plant three trees for a ring of trees ( $60), five trees for a circle ($95), and ten trees for an orchard ($180).

There's always a reason to plant trees:
Anniversary, Bar/Bat Mitzvah, Birthday, Congratulations, Father's Day, For Your Pet, Get Well, Graduation, In Honor Of,
In Memory Of, Mother's Day, New Baby, New Year/Rosh Hashanah, Retirement, Thank You, Wedding, etc.

CBS will have a custom certificate recognizing your donation and mail it to your home, relative or friend.

Remembering Sheldon (Shelly) Razin

Congregation Beth Shalom recalls the blessed memory of a former member, Sheldon (Shelly) Razin. With a smile so huge, Shelly's philanthropic contributions and love for his family, faith and fellow human beings were equally matched. During his 85 years on earth, Shelly came from meager beginnings, and strived to excel in everything he did.

In the 1970's through early 1990's Shelly embraced CBS, then known as TBS (Temple Beth Shalom). He was focused on helping the shul in any way he could. He was a regular for the brotherhood poker nights, often donating his entire winnings to the synagogue. His two boys were enrolled in religious school and they regularly attended Friday evening services.

Professionally, Shelly was a genius, and founder of a medical billing computerization company, perhaps the first of its kind, and he continually strived to be the best, improving equipment, service and results were a passion of his.

Shelly was an intensely passionate and entrepreneurial innovator. In 1974, he founded Quality Systems, Inc., which later became NextGen Healthcare. He served as Chairman of the Board from the incorporation until his retirement as Chairman, and his appointment as Chairman Emeritus in 2015. Shelly was a true visionary. Epic and Cerner, today's hospital—focused behemoths, didn't start up until 1979, five years after Shelly saw a need at the intersection of healthcare and IT and set about fulfilling it. By digitizing health records and automating workflows decades before the HiTECH Act mandated the use of Electronic Health Records (EHRs), Shelly helped improve the lives of thousands of employees, tens of thousands of providers and millions of patients. Building on his legacy of innovation, the company's vision for the future is to leverage innovation to achieve better healthcare outcomes for all.

On the family side of things, he was a fun and interactive person, where his boys recalling their love for their father, each referring to Shelly as their best friend, was a testament to the way he engaged conversation, mixed work with pleasure and lived life.

At his service, numerous individuals shared about Shelly's willingness to help others, some shared about his guidance, and business assistance.

It is always at these times, especially funerals, where we recall all the great things an individual has done for so many.

Attending his services reminded me of that I need to take time to show my gratitude to those who are living, and let them know the importance they have made for me (and others).

Rest in peace, Shelly. Your work here is done, and your legacy you left behind will be carried on by your loving wife, Janet, your boys and grandchildren!

Parts of this tribute was copied from the NextGen website posting of Shelly's passing.

Legacy AWARDS LUNCHEON LEGACY AWARDEES JOAN ZAK / DENNIS BROOKS

Congregation Beth Shalom is pleased to honor Joan Zak and Dennis Brooks with the coveted Legacy Award. This recognition will take place on Sunday, April 23, 2023, as part of the synagogue's annual Legacy Awards recognition event. Additional honorees are Katie Moore founder of ABC Hopes, who will be receiving the Guardian of Righteousness (Shomer Tzedek) Award. The Silver Dollar Pancake House, owners Robert and Diana Hernandez, will receive the Shatuf Tzedek (Business Partner) Award, and Mark and Paula Fogel will also receive the synagogue's Legacy Award. What follows is a short biography of Joan Zak and Dennis Brooks, where you will read about their contributions to the synagogue and the community.

Joan was born and raised in Chicago and has a son, Daniel, who lives in the Bay area. Joan attended Wellesley College. She transferred to the University of Massachusetts, Boston, and graduated with a degree in Mathematics. Following her graduation from UMass, Joan left Boston and moved back to Chicago, where she attended the University of Chicago and was enrolled in a graduate program in education. Joan began working in the areas of technical support and teaching adults, loving both of these careers. Joan left the Chicago area and moved to Dallas, earning an MBA. She also worked in Seattle and finally settled in the San Diego area.

Dennis is originally from Oildale, California, near Bakersfield. He has four children and eight grandchildren. He attended San Jose State University and following college, became a cook working at several San Diego area restaurants and also bought a restaurant in the area. Dennis discovered photography shortly after the restaurant purchase and began photographing weddings and Bar/Bat Mitzvahs earning the reputation of being the premier photographer of B'nai Mitzvot in San Diego. Dennis was Joan's son's Bar Mitzvah photographer, which is how Joan and Dennis met. Dennis also did elementary school photography for several years. Most recently, Dennis has photographed The Legacy Luncheon and additionally, Dennis and Joan have done a portrait station at the luncheon and provided Legacy guests with special keepsake photos.

Dennis and Joan have had interesting "paths" to Judaism. Though both Joan and Dennis' mothers were Jewish, Joan was raised as a Methodist. She began practicing Judaism when she lived in Dallas following a dedication of a Holocaust memorial. Once Joan attended a Friday night Shabbat service, she felt like she had "come home" to Judaism. Dennis began to practice Judaism when his children were in elementary school. How Joan and Dennis came to be a part of the CBS family is an interesting story. Several years ago, Joan and Dennis met Dennis Itzkowitz on a Panama Canal cruise. Dennis spoke about CBS and invited Joan and Dennis to come to the synagogue for a service which they did, and they joined CBS within the month!

Joan wears several "hats" at CBS. She is Secretary of the Board of Directors, researches and leads ever-popular Adult Education and Torah Study programs, and has played an integral part in making services Zoom friendly by creating PowerPoint slides of every service.

Dennis and Joan have celebrated Jewish holidays with some of the residents of Glen Eden, bringing a bit of Judaism and Jewish information to Jews and non-Jews alike. Joan is part of a needlework group that makes items for charity and Dennis can often be found helping other residents of Glen Eden by assisting them in maintaining their yards, watching properties when owners are on vacation, and providing transportation. Dennis also advocates for the interests of the residents of Glen Eden.

Dennis plans to get more involved in nature photography in the future and Joan looks forward to continuing her Jewish studies, as well as leading and participating in services. Dennis and Joan are grateful for the closeness they feel to the members of CBS as well as the mentoring and support of Cantor Bruce Shapiro, CBS' spiritual leader.

FEBRUARY BOOK SELECTION

Stranged sisters seek connection and purpose at the Springfield Armory during the tumult of WWII in this novel of productive rivalries from Loigman (The Two-Family House). Ruth and Millie Kaplan have been at odds from the beginning. As children, they were labeled by their parents—and their tightly knit Jewish community in Brooklyn—as the brains and the beauty, respectively. Growing up, Ruth seethed as she felt obligated to fix her little sister’s mistakes. Meanwhile, Millie soaked in all the male attention, but also aspired to be more than just someone’s trophy wife. When unexpected tragedy breaks the family apart, Ruth leaves Brooklyn for Springfield, Mass., to stay with extended family, while Millie stays behind, gets married, and only rarely writes her sister. Years later, at the height of WWII, Millie and her young son shows up on Ruth’s doorstep, forcing to the surface their long-closeted frustrations. Together with a cast of motivated women from all classes of society, Ruth and Millie navigate old lies as well as newfound alliances and enemies within the Springfield Armory, where they all work to help the war effort. With measured, lucid prose, Loigman tells a moving story of women coming together in the face of difficulties, both personal and global, and doing anything to succeed.

Beyond the SYNAGOGUE

Operation Jucha—Bamba, Coke, Memory

CBS joined thousands of individuals around the world in "Operation Jucha – Bamba, Coke, Memory", a special initiative applying IDF Major Yochai 'Jucha' Kalangel's (z"l) life story to inspire people to acts of kindness and gratitude.

IDF Major Yochai 'Jucha' Kalangel (z"l) wasn't just a man of words, He was a man of action. He was a devoted commander who led his troops in war, a loving husband and father, and an extraordinary person who looked after every soldier as if he was his own son. Whenever Yochai saw a depressed or struggling soldier, he would immediately send them to go get a Bamba snack and a Coke, at his expense, to cheer them up. Yochai was killed on the Lebanese Border on January 28, 2015, (Shvat 8 5775).

Every year since the project started, during the month of January, people all over Israel give out Coke, Bamba and snacks alongside thank-you notes to show gratitude and spread love to IDF soldiers. In 2022 the operation reached over 30,000 soldiers!
